Curzon Townhomes Division of Responsibility

Understanding your Eagle Creek Common Area and Neighborhood Assessments and your responsibilities as a townhome owner

As a townhome owner, navigating the responsibilities for the maintenance of your home can be, at times, confusing. In addition to the assessments you pay in common with other homeowners in Eagle Creek for Association Common Area Maintenance, you are responsible for paying an additional assessment for your townhomes (i.e., a Neighborhood Assessment) which is specifically and exclusively used to cover the expenses the Association incurs for fulfilling additional responsibilities it has for your neighborhood. However, are you aware of the purpose(s) and use(s) of such funds? Do you understand the additional responsibilities the Association has with respect to your neighborhood or when the Association anticipates addressing their responsibilities?

The amount of the common area assessments and your neighborhood assessment is primarily determined by a maintenance schedule which has been developed for Eagle Creek and for your neighborhood. Some of the items or components comprising the schedule are easy to determine, such as the landscape maintenance and fertilization components and schedule. For items with a longer useful life such as painting, landscape replacement and roof replacement, the Association endeavors to project when these items will need to be addressed and the associated cost by contracting with a Reserve Study specialist to conduct a reserve study on a periodic basis. As such, a portion of your quarterly assessments are set aside to fund these future projects. By regularly setting aside funds for the maintenance of these components, the need to significantly increase assessments and/or levy a special assessment is reduced. A description of some of the items and maintenance schedules (if applicable) that are maintained by the Association in Eagle Creek or specifically in your neighborhood are discussed below. This is not intended to be an exhaustive list. Homeowners should reference the Governing Documents which shall prevail.
